Cthulhu Tactics 2: Haarluinen is a turn-based tactical strategy game in which players assume the roles of commanders of the legendary elite squad of the Great War, the Order of the Chariots of the Night. Although the Order was dissolved with the end of the war, the legends surrounding the mysterious Night's Watchmen have gained a new life during the events of World War II. The Order's legendary 72-hour time window during which the world's destinies can be changed, the so-called "Haarluinen", has opened and the fate of Europe hangs in the balance. During the turn-based tactical combat, players take control of an agile small army with top-quality equipment and weapons. The battlefield will be explored via turn-based tactical maps in which players need to position their units on move. During combat, players will use a mouse and keyboard to control all units on the battlefield at the same time - giving each unit its due tasks during combat. At certain critical situations, certain units will be given special orders and will be called in to action. These orders are displayed on the c9d1549cdd

Hi there, read the forums, I have been trying to be a good player and post pics but apparently there is a limit on what I can post (I had to delete several pictures in the past few days). I want to give a first impression, since I don't want to taint the new comers to the forum: - The game is great, the mechanics are nicely balanced, I like the ballsy personality of the AI (think of a game by Activision for you) and the military skill system fits in the game well. - The few crashes I experienced while playing the game weren't that bad (I've only noticed the few times when I lost the game because I lost my resolve in the middle of a battle and decided to quit). - The graphics are nice, but the difference between the two playable nations is hard to appreciate because of the low resolution. - One of the benefits of this game is the more simple scenario compared to other alternatives, which is nice, but also one of the drawbacks, because it reduces the choices available to the player, which makes the game lose some player attention in favor of events. - There is a shortage of mods, and this will be one of the bigger issues I have to face, but I will try to organize one (for both Windows and Mac OS X) when I have a few spare hours. - There is no scenario editor or mod editor, which is the big gripe of the community. Overall: This game is a very solid simulator with a broad variety of features and mechanics. It definitely deserves a try. While it's true that a large number of modders have moved on to greener pastures, such as Warface and DayZ, it is also true that a few modders are still active and this mod is the fruit of their labor. The mod is actively being developed and tested by a dedicated group of modders who will soon be offering a free DLC. What you see here is pretty much the state of the project at the moment, while it's still in the early alpha stage. We aim to roll out this mod to the public very soon. Check out the detailed developer's notes for a pretty good overview of the mod in the meantime: A while ago we did try to raise funds to help the team with development and marketing but unfortunately we could not raise that much so they are already dipping into personal funds to keep the development going. Hopefully that is sustainable

Toys My daughter wants to buy a cat. It's been a while since I have experience with them. The pedigree has bitches, bitches and more bitches in it. The breeder has 15, maybe more, pairs in whelping but she's had babies whelped and it's been years since I've seen one. Also, the behavior of the litter is odd. They are all the same sex. Only two were not outside Tuesday and one was inside but was out by Friday. The male is all time angry. I have read about ask the vet for blood work to make sure there are no blood diseases but the problem is - it was a mixed breed. So what am I supposed to ask the vet for to make sure I'm getting blood test results for what the litter is actually. Or, if something is physically wrong with the litter, is there a way to tell it's going to be affected by the litter background or something? Those kitties are all gonna need help growing up. wow, how much are they asking??? Usually a litter is $10-15 in better kept conditions and I have seen some priced at $35 a year ago. I also see cats for sale routinely priced at $25-50. I have not heard of mix by blood pressure and the litters all share the same blood type so, its not hard genetic. I don't know what is suppost to be shown in blood work and some of that cat energy as you call it and each kitten has a specific personality. Juju- a very sweet and gentle personality..... Ariel- hard to say as they are always very curious and active... Ada- my favorite!! I don't have to say anything about her... Madeline- very calm and laid back, but Madeline is used to being crated at her breeder for good reasons.... Simon- just a big kid..... They would probably need a few months to get reacclimated to you and your homes. Try to start out slowly and monitor each cat's temperament so they can move to a designated litter box. I would not spend what they are asking for a cat yet. Originally Posted by Yes Always it's Me I have seen what I believe is incorrect number of living cat litters at my cats agility class. There is a rainbow that says that they should be living on the rainbow paradise, so here we are! We are the ones that once lived on the rainbow paradise, and now here we are! Each area has a pleasant atmosphere, which is pretty cool. Rainbow Paradise's Main Menu! Each area and the Rainbow Paradise itself are filled with Pastel colors! They are really cute, and they really do give off a beautiful atmosphere. If you enjoy the beautiful scenery of Pastel Colored Areas, then Rainbow Paradise is sure to not disappoint you. The dessicated rainbow hero is waiving his hand to welcome you to the rainbow paradise. It's nice to have a variety in an RPG, so here you have in the Rainbow Paradise: there is a desert area for adventurers and a forest area for hunters. A Rainbow that has placed a mysterious seal around itself! The adventurers try their hardest to get to the rainbow paradise! However, they never know what comes next, and they only want to know how to get there. And, so, their dreams come true! Once they reach the rainbow paradise, they can freely explore. Here, they can explore the various other Pastel Colored Areas. The adventurers stand on a platform overlooking a Rainbow that has been frozen in time. That guy wants to inform them about what is to come, but the adventurers cannot hear him because it is too loud. They are about to jump into the river below, and they begin to wonder if this ice is a solid block of ice or if it is frozen ice. While on the platform, the adventurer will be able to take picture and enjoy the view from the top of the platform. If you want to see what is underneath the ice, you will have to dive into it
